

To make money in the same week, if you want to play it safe, first scout your business. find out how much the shares are normally, how many there are and how long the owners of them have had them. this will lead to a understanding of whether you want to keep them or not, but, it is beneficial to sell them to scalp the market, as then you will end up with more capital.

So, if you were a business, and you knew you would not have to pay if they got bought and sold the same day, then you want them to change hands, yes? if you knew that the bearer will hold onto them, that takes you out of the news. the business needs to get noticed! to get the business noticed, you need to get into the journals, as, that is what bankers read all the time.

This could be cheap or it could be expensive. if you were to, as a bank, buy shares in a health care scheme that is big or something, then sell them without telling anyone, you could make sure you get into the news. i mean, the public likes good news, and a big bank buying shares in said business would surely show your good intentions.

Of course, if you did buy shares in a 'charity' then you could turn it into a business, yes? if you owned a mental hospital, you could sell it to make money out of it. i mean, there are a few ways to make money from mental hospitals, like offering to lower the rates on the people for paid for surveys, that you get to sell off, yes? then there is the option of selling time from doctors to these hospitals for information on treatments and results. if you look long enough, with the right frame of mind, there are profits in charity, of course.

How about lost animals? if the kennels were to want to make money, they could sell their dogs cheaply to the elderly, and people that have no human contact, yes? then there is the shelters for the homeless, they could make a profit by collecting blood on site, or, have them read through magazines looking for feed back to the magazine on their best journalists or clothing brands.

Then there is the poverty stricken people. if they were to find jobs, all would be well, but, some lack skills or self esteem to get a job. for these, there is an easier alternative, namely, plastics and glass recovery. if they were to collect plastics, they could recover it into a cylinder in a drum. if you were to heat the drum enough, maybe with some firewood, and, cutting it up with the glass, then they could lightly heat all the parts to melt slightly, this will result in a drum full of 'molded' plastics. to make plastic bags out of the plastic, it needs to be thinner, so, they would need to make it relax some. this can be done by adding things like bleach to add liquids to the mixture, while it is melting together, then using a already working bag to outline the one you want to make. then, you will have a triple or more thick bag! this will be useful for some people that re sick of the bags tearing.

I had the unfortunate luck of meeting this woman on this other forum that wanted to impose herself on me. i say this because every time i talked to her about like doing something constructive, she talked about how many people she knew. so, i started wondering why she would do that, and came to the conclusion she just wants to scare people into submitting to her. the problem is, even if she does scare people to her side, what will she do with them? she doesn't do anything other than talk about how many friends she has, so, as a 'bridge builder' i fought her.

This reminds me of another fight between two women on the forums. they took it to court i hear. could this happen to me? could this populist drunk get me into court with her? well, me not being able to pay for the costs, i would have to make this quick, so i am devising my plan, but, what about us here? we call world leaders all sorts of names, and, they may call us on it, yes?

So, how do you justify calling a woman a ugly, fat, smelly, hairy, slimy $#@!?! well, where do those words come from, and what do they mean. given a dictionary and a photograph, it will be time for her to call for populism, where people would be outraged that i say this to a woman. so, instead of calling her those things, i call her a old afrikaans term - kaffir.

Kaffirs were originally slaves from india in south africa. now, how can i call her this? if she does not produce, she is a kaffir. if she does not have anything backing her up, what can she do? i am saying she is a kaffir, with no uncertainty in my mind, so, is the burden of proof on me or her? let's say it is on me?

She is said kaffir because she is full of her self, and i can prove it. why do people come onto forums? to be heard! that is why we are all here, not to sit around our houses arguing with ourselves, we have taken the next step and want to argue with someone else. this is our choice. now, when someone talks about their friends all the time, and someone else is trying to help her, like me at first, she starts talking about friends. now, maybe this is her way of saying i don't have friends, or, maybe it is her way of saying she knows people, or maybe it is her way of saying something else. the real message is "i want to help you," and the answer is "i have friends." this is like insulting someone! i was insulted, so fought her. we fought day and night, all over the forum, and every time i asked her a question, it was - "i have friends."

Then i avoided her. then she followed me, saying stuff like i know how to fly an plane. okay, quite amazed at this unique talent i asked her some questions, as, she seems to me to not only be a kaffir, but a populist too. kpop is the term i think? so naturally, me trying to get on with helping anyone that needs help, she interrupted and told me other weird and wonderful things. this does not put anything on the table for anyone, it is a waste of time, fruitless, rhetoric. why she came to these forums to say these things is beyond me, so, i gave her a death threat and left. that is how angry i still am.

Luckily, it led me here. people on the street give each other death threats all the time, talking about each other's mothers. this has not really been recorded, so, i will go out on a limb and tell her her mother is a pansy. hell, i will kill her mother too!

Sometimes we do not think before we call people insults, other times we do. i thought about it, and am definitely sure i will dig her bones up one day and spray pain kaffir all over her face.

Now, for the real debate here, why do we insult each other, and how do we justify it? if you have a term in your country, and you can liken it to something about that person, in your eyes, and you do it well, then you are justified to call a thing by the name it has for you. this is like naming your child, this is like founding a village. just find links.

Good day, i am sure a lot of you are just looking through the forum thinking what does this hic want? well, i am here to tell you all that i am worth more than you! yes i am!

Why am i worth more? i put things on the table for others, like a bridge builder. for example, i stopped the war in georgia in the tens. that is building a bridge.

Sometimes i read other's responses and they are not trying to 'build bridges.' sometimes it is humorous or otherwise clever. to those they are fun and make me laugh, they make us all laugh. they are 'fun guys.'

Then there are those 'moles.' moles dig around on the internet and bring things here to be discussed. these are fuel for the fire.

Then, there are those who come here to be childish. there are not a lot of them left on this forum.

Which are you? do you put something on the table, or are you out for yourself without putting something on the table? i see there are no more atheists that try to get into the news as the bringer of a freer lifestyle, thanks to them. man i hate those people.

If they don't want it to become a 'moslem place,' then they need to make the 'christians' look better. if they were all to walk around with bibles, they would look more devoted, yes?

In time the european muslims will also become westernized. it is true that in this vacuum there is boredom, and the white people usually get into media in their spare time. of course, if the television was to make time to advertise gardening, then there would be more interest in it. people would say that they can do the same, or something close, and wonder if they really could. this is a bad example because of all the apartments in european cities though. maybe if they were to advertise broadway shows, there would be some more interest in that - it is good place to meet women, and therefore brings men, yes?

To fill this vacuum could be something more practical, like cooking. if everyone was to binge on their natural desires, then they could really have fun. maybe if they were to take up a hobby that they really want to do?

What is the point of this thread? it seems to be about the fall of man and the rise of god, which seems to be good. the problem is some people are scared, and, if there was a city full of moslems, then they would be bumped around in the mall maybe? i understand now.

Basically, the best thing to do to stop europe becoming too religious is to make it legal. if the moslems were told to pray, by the ayatollah at certain times, then there would not be a constant stream of people to the mosques. then again, if the lord wants us to pray, we should. if we were to instead bring god into our lives, say, play a computer game and get a name out of the bible, we could have fun as a holy warrior, yes?

Then again, if we were to suggest they play bibliomancy at home or at mosque, they could light a candle and open to a random page and read the random things on that page. this is fun, i have done it before, and the placebo effect keeps me thinking of god in all my doings. this submission could work out nicely.

The state is not supplying anyone with weapons, there would be a paper trail. if there is no paper trail, then there is the fact that this is not taxed, does not go to the g.d.p. and these weapons are expensive, so will leave this country poor in the long run.

On the other hand, these weapons are there illegally. to get rid of all weapons, they need to just shoot e.m.p. weapons all over the city, no big deal!

If they seriously want to get all the weapons at any given time, they need to appeal to the owners needs, or, appeal to others to help them. if they were to block the drains of suspects to get undercover people in, this could be for any service, they could investigate subliminally with questioning as to what they think of weapons, then switch to violent criminal activity, or even base ball or motor sports to decode them. this could be recorded for their peers as evidence, yes? this will lead to a lesser sentence for information, and some guy with a meager salary could really do with a bit of financial incentive.

In china the system is strict. there is little freedom as to changing laws, but there are certain freedoms. they take a long time to come in other words.

As we outside of china know, the students are usually fighting for more freedoms. this is because they want to see their country - as all subjects cover a 'code of conduct' for the syllabus more or less - become 'better' or more flexible, they will be motivated to work in a world where there are more freedoms.

Now, the older generation has had their fight, and they feel that having a okay job is better than having no job. in times, the leaders are identified and the state plays a hand in getting their lives ruined. for this reason, they should get leaders that are 'homeless' or have nothing to lose to be the leaders. this is very aggressive though, but i am sure they could also get retired people to join them for the sake of their children's futures.

But, that is not the best option. the best option is to provide financing of these new freedoms. if you want to own a car, and you can only afford a bicycle, of course you complain. the state or the owner of the car will tell you to go away, yes? now, if you got a plan to get your car, obviously you will have to make it work for the guy with the car, of course.

So, you make a finance plan. if you were to find a way to make the state or the owner benefit by the plan, then they could see you get the car - all you need to do is understand the assets handling of the business, and make it work for them, and therefore for you.

If you were to want to have shorter working hours, you could do all your work neatly and on time for a week, but, you would have to motivate others to do the same. then, in the time you got left, you bother the boss asking for more work. the bosses usually don't really know what to do with overtime of staff, so will eventually let you go home earlier if the work is up to date, in theory. of course, they may cut back on staff, which could be really bad.

Social issues in China are varied and wide-ranging, and are a combined result of the Chinese economic reforms set in place in the late 1970s, China's political and cultural history, and an immense population. Because of the vast number of social problems that exist in China today (not at all exclusive to the following list), China's government has faced considerable difficulty in trying to remedy the issues. Many of these issues are exposed by the Chinese media, while subjects that may contain politically sensitive issues may be censored. Some academics hold that China's fragile social balance, combined with a bubble economy makes China an extremely unstable country, while others argue China's societal trends have created a balance to sustain itself.

So, one of the problems is bribery. if they could get rid of this problem, they could really have a solid court house system, yes?

If the state was to tax bribes, they would surely get their monies worth. if the opposition parties were in control of the auditing of the state power, then they could see that there is no bribery, but, the only way to get this right is if there is no more corruption.

Enter the auditing team. how do you get an auditing team you cannot bribe? you make it out of the people bribing them! this will work, give me a moment!

If you were to make your bribe official, then you will be calling it a "tender" in my country. if there are tenders, some of them will go under the radar. for this reason, the tax payers and opposition should select the auditing team and audit the account every month or so. the media! they won't be bribed! unfortunately they will be smothered by the state with their freedoms, so, we need to set it up even higher!

So, i want to make china more liberated, or, completely liberated. with the media being muzzled all the time, they won't be able to speak, so, we need an underground. this would be where social media comes in, or free newspapers! the opposition could set up for free newspapers they pay for, and there is no license! this means they can print anything they want in there, but, they need to leave evidence so the state can call them, and, then take it to court for the whole country to see, yes?

This will stop a lot of slow moving things. then they could also try to, seeing as how bribery is so 'big,' offer police uniforms and undercover temporary permits to the homeless. this will let them get into places and expose the state for all it is worth.

Of course, this could send the state into free fall! the leaders will lose their support, and worse! the best option here is to hear the people, as, they want to be heard. if the debate opens up, the leaders will be forced to join. this could be on a paid for opposition channel on television. the people in charge should once again be people with nothing to lose!

To solve this 'problem' they need dialogue - as in communication. beating your chest on an iceberg is not a good way to communicate! Okay, so maybe using body language will work? maybe obama can throw some nuclear waste into siberia? seriously, we need dialogue!

So, if they were to appeal to each other's people, like as in Putin talking to new york and obama talking to Saint perterberg, then there would be more chance of peace, yes? then, they will pretend to support the other side, there will be panic by the leaders, and the people will not pay taxes, not paying the salary of the leaders?

Of course, the best way to approach this is to get personal. Putin seems to be doing the aggressive stuff, but, is he? of course! if obama was to threaten him into the international criminal court, or, appeal to the international monetary fund to repeal money lent to russia, then there could be progress, yes?

Or, they could have a war. this will leave them with destroyed assets over the ocean with more people to feed. or they could not be after the land of another? then why not use nukes? nukes will be shot sown quickly.

I am sure that, them both being sane, and sane people do not normally want to send their people to kill other people for no reason, there must be a reason. of course, if they fail to meet the criteria of my following reasoning, then they might be right for the mental wards, yes? as declared by their cabinet, of course - see they are just people!

Now, if they were to look back as to what got them like this, then they will see Ukraine. is it working now? was it working better before? did many people die? i am sure that they can both leave the arena, and just chill, with a declaration of peace, yes? the Ukraine is functioning nicely now, there is nothing wrong with a floor crossing, and the floor was crossed by the people of ukraine, heard by the state of russia. if mexico absorbs california then will there be a war? if Northern ireland wants to join ireland, will there be a war? there was conflict of resources, that is all. if what has happened could be undone, i am sure there would be a slower more cautious approach, where human resources could be spared, but, there is no way to do that. i know two wrongs don't make a right. this is a fact.

Please settle things nicely would be my message to the parties. you can always launch later.

As for the email problem, what they want to delete is their business. it is their business because it is their position in politics to deal with their business. if they are doing something wrong, the party will kick them out, yes? hilldog and jebba need to be allowed to delete things they think are no good, so as a test of my intuition, i will tell you what was in those emails, okay?

I am looking into my crystal ball... and i see... i see... a email about abortion. on both sides. nothing gets people worked up like children holding their fingers when they are small, and, libs and the g.o.p. both have set standards about those topics. if it comes to them even bringing up that they got an email from fat freddy about his wife needing an abortion, pardon them if they delete them.

I am looking for more... hmmm... um..... okay, i got a feeling a constitutional law is being mishandled. yes, someone is flim flammng and flop flipping around gun control on both sides. this is something better discussed by someone that specializes in this and is not of their concern.

So, it is logical to deduct, my dear watson or frodo or whatever you super hero name is, that the public need not send things up to the wrong people. if you need a tires changed, do you call the swat team?

I have been diagnosed with schitzophrenia, but know i am also bipolar. it affects different people differently because their environment and body and mental chemicals and all that jazz are different, but, honestly, besides actual autism or retardation, there is no problem, unless, the 'victim' cannot handle it.

I say this because it all comes down to attitude. if you can sit with a shrink for months while they tell you why you are unhappy, then after that time they prescribe medicine, then it doesn't need medicine.

So, if you were to look at your dementia or what have you as a blessing, that you can hear voices, and, learn to use that to your advantage, then you are thankful. if you were to say to these voices, look here, i can hear you, you are part of me, not some demon or something, then they will help you. if you were to walk towards an intersection, and they distract you, it is you distracting yourself because you feel you need not worry about the intersection. then, you need to control them, think why they are shouting - are you in danger? are you supposed to be paying attention? in the case of voices, you need to overcome the problems you have with people, and listen to them. these 'figments' are part of you now!

Now, if you were to learn to control these things, as i have, then you will be happier. i should be low all the time because i am bored, they say, but i find things to do. i like to patrol the house all the time, flit in and out of radio broadcasts, and analyze the messages of the radio, while they are gone, they are still a memory. a memory of yours. your memory. you can choose to remember anything you want anytime you want. if all you can think about is getting raped, then that is because, well, you are either trying to avoid it, say, in your kitchen at home with your family around, or, pardon the expression, you are into feeling sorry for yourself. get a hobby!

Parabola.

If we were to take the circle at the top of the cylinder, at say three minimeters, we will get a ratio. if we were to take it again at another three minimeters, we will have something to compare it to. then, we could find the ratio of 'expansion.' easy so far?

So, we want to find it at odd angles lower down. if we were to find the measurements of the total 'floor' of the cone, then we could fit it into the cone, and, ratio wise we could merely bisect it at any given point, and then 'split' it. this would be a direct comparison of that ratio i gave you in the beginning, being, the area of the first circle, compared to the ratio of the second circle coming down the cone, while it is easy to work out, and then saying that for every three millimeters of length between the 'base' or opening of the 'cone,' there would be that angle's worth of area, yes?

Now, if you were to take the length from the 'climax' to the 'point,' then multiply the area by the length, then multiply that by the ratio of the first two measurements, then you would have your answer.

Universal parabolic constant.

It is defined as the ratio, for any parabola, of the arc length of the parabolic segment formed by the latus rectum to the focal parameter. It is denoted  $P$ .<sup>[1][2][3]</sup> In the diagram, the latus rectum is pictured in blue, the parabolic segment that it forms in red and the focal parameter in green. (The focus of the parabola is the point  $F$  and the directrix is the line  $L$ .) The value of  $P$  is<sup>[4]</sup>  $P = \ln(1 + \sqrt{2}) + \sqrt{2} = 2.29558714939 \dots$  (sequence A103710 in OEIS). The circle and parabola are unique among conic sections in that they have a universal constant. The analogous ratios for ellipses and hyperbolas depend on their eccentricities. This means that all circles are similar and all parabolas are similar, whereas ellipses and hyperbolas are not.

So, there is already a 'ratio,' yes?

The average distance from a point randomly selected in the unit square to its center is [5]  $d_{\text{avg}} = \frac{P}{6}$ . Proof.

$$\begin{aligned} d_{\text{avg}} &:= 8 \int_0^{\frac{1}{2}} \int_0^x \sqrt{x^2 + y^2} \, dy \, dx \\ &= 8 \int_0^{\frac{1}{2}} \frac{1}{2} x^2 (\ln(1 + \sqrt{2}) + \sqrt{2}) \, dx \\ &= 4P \int_0^{\frac{1}{2}} x^2 \, dx \\ &= \frac{P}{6}. \end{aligned}$$

To find the average has already been worked out, but, to be precise could be the difference between a rocket traveling forty percent more finely, yes?

So, we need to find a more accurate method, yes? the correct way to work out the selected to the unit square is to divide it by [four] and [times] it by three.

Elementary my dear cigar! if you were to observe that the whole sum comes to zero, you will understand that the answer cannot be zero, because that leaves us with the unworkable value!

So, it must be  $[90 / 5] * 2$ ? this will leave us with that odd one we can work out, being the ki, because, if i am not mistaken, we can take it for granted that these right angels are both two fifths with the center being one fifth the line is going in the positive side of the cross section, yes?

Now, it must be a fifth, or, 20 degrees, plus, 14.66 degrees.

This would lead to 34.66 degrees.

The P versus NP problem is a major unsolved problem in computer science. Informally, it asks whether every problem whose solution can be quickly verified by a computer can also be quickly solved by a computer.

Okay, if a computer can verify something, it can arrive at the answer. if you were to say that  $[x+2=]$   $[x+2]$  then we need to find the answer for  $x$ , yes? if you put into the computer read only memory that  $x$  equals the number prescribed by the program, then it will be easy to work the problem out, no?

Therefore, the program must be set out as  $x$  equals the 'situation's parameters.' if the problem is relevant to something, it must say robot inserts value of the parameters. or, it must read the robot, which is code, which means decompiling. this could be done with a 'mini program' that reads scripts, yes?

To stop racism we need to make all black people disappear! they need to like go to hell or something! yes yes! of course, i am white, and i would like to see a end to racism.

Maybe if we were to deal with the symptoms and not the cause, we could end the effects of racism. i mean, if we got a chinese person walking around not liking dogs or hispanic people, that might be because they prefer cats or black people, yes?

So, to end racism's symptoms, we need to tell people that they only need to accept these other people. if they prefer chicago bulls to knicks, then that is fine, but please do not hit or be nasty to the knicks, okay?

If we were to breed tolerance, and wanted to do it quickly, we could, even at an advanced age, make people tell us why they hate these people. get them thinking, and, they need to admit there is nothing to hate, yes?

If there is a person out there that does not hate others at all, like jesus, then it is surely better to be like jesus than to be like hitler, that was racist, yes? do liverpool and manchester united fans still send each other to hospital?

You know what, racism is no longer an issue! there are no race related wars, except where there is isis and boko harem, are you like them? the truth is, when we see other races, we get excited, like seeing women if you are men, or the other way around. learning about new people is exciting, you must admit - how often don't you wonder about the new kids at your school or work? how often don't you get excited when you know there is a new teacher or boss? all change is exciting, and changing your personality to include different 'styles' of living could be fun too - i did it in my youth, why don't you try it? the whole thing is, that when you are in a bar drinking with your friends and a black guy walks in, you know you need to change to include them into your circle, and sometimes people don't want to change, so;

If you were to try this out, it will work. if you as a black person want to be accepted, then you should change for them too! if you were to talk sophisticated as you can, you will avoid abuse, if you listen to different music, you will avoid abuse, if you were to change your expression to be more of a friendly guy, you will avoid abuse. if they don't change their 'combat stance,' and there is more of them than you, maybe you should, as a south paw, change your stance, yes?
